CORNER OF THE STORE

Thank you for visiting the General Store this month. Please take your time and look around. The fine folks that provide these goods and services are probably a lot like you; working hard to earn a living, making time once in awhile to do something enjoyable.

If you enjoy reading Outdoor Times, support the people that market their businesses in Outdoor Times. This support will help us ensure a top quality publication every month.

If you understand the benefits of giving, you probably realize sharing your valuable free time with a child will benefit two people instead of one. Think back. Can you remember even one really special time outdoors when an adult gave you their time? Fortunately, I can.

Here's a story worth reading.

Sometimes there are effects of our influence that we may never know. G. Brook

Adams kept a diary from his boyhood. One special day when he was eight years old, he wrote in his diary, "Went fishing with my father; the most glorious day of my life." Throughout the next 40 years of his life he never forgot that day he went fishing with his father, he made repeated references to it in his diary, commenting on the influence of that day on his life.

Brook's father was an important man; he was Charles Frances Adams, the US ambassador to Great Britain under the Lincoln administration. Interestingly, he too made a note in his diary about the fishing trip. He wrote simply, "Went fishing with my son; a day wasted." *

See you next month, George Lester
